The second Regional Stakeholders meeting for the LAST MILE project was held at the University of Szczecin on 22nd of September 2016

The meeting was held on 22-nd September 2016 in Szczecin, at the headquarters of the University of Szczecin at the Faculty of Management and Services.

Once again it was accompanied by a significant representation of major regional stakeholders which already took a part in the LAST MILE opening event in June. Furthermore, the meeting was attended by representatives of the scientific community - including representatives from the field of transport and sustainable mobility.

The meeting was again divided into two parts – presentations and open discussion.

First part started with the general presentation of different sustainable and flexible transport systems with explanation of the definitions, practical examples and comparison of different systems. Then there were presented good practices from Austria, observed during the 1-st Interregional exchange meeting in East Tyrol. Presentation part ended with demonstration of the results of sustainable transport analysis made so far for the LAST MILE Project within the area of selected municipalities.

The discussion panel was a possibility of exchanging experiences about flexible transport solutions, transferability of good practices that were presented and ideas on how could these regional stakeholder meetings develop, with a plan to transform them more into a workshop form.
